Designed for ages 14-17 only, this intensive 6-day, 5-night program on Hog Island (Muscongus Bay, Maine) allows enthusiastic young birders to connect with people their own age, learn field identification, explore bird ecology and conservation, and to work with some of the country's best-known birders and ornithologists. This program includes the unique opportunity to see Audubon's Seabird Restoration work in action, and is the only Hog Island program that lands participants on Eastern Egg Rock during the puffin breeding season (weather and sea conditions permitting).

"I just want to say that I can highly recommend this camp to everyone, especially to teens. It's a really inspirational week... Plus, the food is incredible." - Benjamin Van Doren, White Plains, NY

Price, covered in full by Scholarship: $1,695. Cost includes all meals, snacks, housing, instruction and boat trips. Teen/families must arrange and pay for transportation to and from the Audubon dock in Bremen, Maine, at the start and end of the session. If flying, information is provided on the Hog Island Audubon website for transportation, available for an additional fee, from the airport to the camp dock.

These programs are for teens ages 14 to 17 with an avid interest in birds. They require physical and emotional maturity. Final acceptance in the program is contingent upon Hog Island staff review of application materials, which includes recommendation letters and a series of questions to be completed by the teen.

For program specifics including session information, lodging or meals, contact the Audubon Camp at hogisland@audubon.org or (207) 360-7733, or visit the Hog Island website at <https://hogisland.audubon.org/>.
